A PLANNING SUPPORT SYSTEM SOFTWARE

A tool that supports all aspects of the land use planning process...

What if?™ has been developed by What if?, Inc. a privately held corporation founded in 1996.

Richard E. Klosterman, Ph.D., President and CEO of

What if?, Inc. holds a Ph.D. in City and Regional Planning from Cornell University and a B.S. in Civil Engineering from Purdue University and has over 25 years of experience developing computer software for planning.

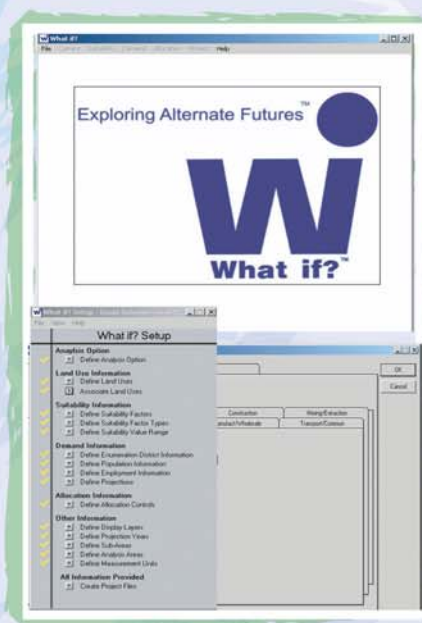

* Easy to Use. What if? is designed to be used by non-technical people and in public forums. It incorporates the familiar Windows interface and provides check boxes, options buttons, and data entry boxes for selecting options and entering required data. All model outputs are provided in easy-to-understand maps and tables.

* Customized. What if? directly incorporates currently available GIS and non-GIS data in order to support community-based dialogue and collaborative decision-making. It can also accommodate new GIS and non-GIS data sets as they become available.

* GIS-Based. What if? can incorporate information stored in popular GIS systems such as ESRI's ArcView® GIS, and all other systems that can generate ESRI shape files. All model outputs can also be viewed with ArcView® GIS and any other program that can read shape files.

* Complete. What if? is a standalone system which requires no additional GIS or non-GIS software.

It can be operated within;
Townships, Districts,
Regions, and States

System requirements: minimum of 128 MB RAM and Pentium 500 MHz CPU, Windows 98 SE, 2000, NT4, and Windows XP
